Buy Tickets Now & Robin Opsahl | Des Moines Register staff riding Phoenix at AdventurelandDes Moines Register staff Zach Boyden-Holmes and Linh Ta went for a ride on Adventureland Phoenix's new coaster a few weeks later than usual, but adventureland theme park officially opened its gates for the first time this year to guests with the season passing Wednesday. Altoona Park opened for public reception Friday. Typically, the park is open on weekends starting in May and remains open daily from Memorial Day weekend. But due to the closure and necessary measures towards public gatherings due to the COVID-19 pandemic, Adventureland must push back its 45th opening day. The park implements strict sanitation practices and social distancing rules, as well as reducing the maximum number of people allowed into the park at any one time to reduce the spread of novel coronavirus, said Molly Vincent, adventureland's director of markers. Around the park, there is a 6-foot marker in the waiting room ahead of the ride. Hand sanitizer dispensers are prepared throughout the park and near the exits of many rides. Staff also clean the rides regularly, sometimes stopping people queuing for immediate action. Some things may take a little longer than people get used to, but so far the guests have been so accommodating and responsible for themselves and their children, Vincent said. People have really understood and I think it's just nice to have a nice place to go outside, finally. Christine Meggison, 45, from Des Moines took her children Tess and Jack, along with friends' children, to the park on Thursday. They often use hand sanitizer to reduce the spread of COVID-19. Dragon Slayer: Fans wondering what will replace The Dragon in AdventurelandMeggison are grateful Adventureland chose to open. I really appreciate getting this piece of normalization for our family, he said. It feels like we're finally getting some of our summers back. With reduced crowd capacity due to the pandemic, the park is leaving fewer guests than usual, Vincent said. Season passholders are guaranteed entry to the park daily, but ticket holders will be accepted based on the first service. Adventureland Bay Water Park remains closed. From the vault: Adventureland marks 40 years of Temporary sensation Adventureland doesn't make its attendance numbers public, the park will post daily updates on the expected crowd size on their Facebook page, so families can assess whether will be able to enter the park, or if they have to wait. Waiting times and new procedures are worth the hassle for some families. Audra Jodoak, who brought her four children from Ankeny to play in the park on Thursday, said she was thrilled to have a place for her children to have fun. Ashlyn Jodoak, 9, said being in the park was fun because it was different. We're stuck inside forever, he said. So it's fun even to get out of the house. Quarantine kept Jodoak's children at home for several months, said Audra Jodoak, with the school moved online. Having a place for kids to have fun, while still practicing how to stay healthy, is what his family needs. They have a lot of energy from being inside for so long, he said. I think a lot of parents would appreciate having an open space now for kids to burnish some of their energy. Robin Opsahl covers the eastern Des Moines metro for the Register. [1] According to the park operator, the Disney company helped with some initial park planning. Years later, Adventureland advised the operators of Wild West World Park in Wichita, Kansas and allowed them to use photos taken at Adventureland in initial promotional materials while the park was being built. These photos can still be seen on the park flyer just before it opened. Damage from the tail end of the tornado delayed opening until July 28, 1974, with the first ride opening on August 16. The first full season for Adventureland began in 1975. The grand opening is official on May 31. Congressman Neal Smith, Altoona Mayor Lloyd Sievers and Adventureland president Jack Krantz spoke at the opening ceremony. Skyride from the World's Fair in Spokane, Washington was added that year. In 1978 construction began on Adventureland's largest wooden roller coaster, tornado, which opened on July 4, 1978. Tornadoes are soon listed among the top ten wooden roller coasters in the world. [1] The following year, the County Fair area with its skill game was added. Also in 1979, Adventureland bought the aging Riverview Amusement Park in Des Moines and moved some attractions to their own themed area just south of the park in 1980. Some of these attractions include the famous heavy guessing booth, the Hi-striker game (now in storage at Haunted House rides (used as stations for the malfunctioning Dragon roller coaster), Mirror/Funny Maze (found on exiting dragon dragon roller ride in Adventureland), Skee-Ball games, Riverview carousels, as well as other famous and beloved attractions. In 1990, the Riverview theme area was transformed into Dragon Island, the home of adventureland's double looping reverse steel roller coaster, which opened on May 12, 1990. 1993 brought the largest park expansion since Adventureland was built. Outlaw Gulch, a western themed area, was built on 12 hectares (49,000 m2) of land at a cost of about $5 million. Outlaw Gulch consists of three rides: Wrangler (a Scrambler), Chuck Wagon and Outlaw roller coaster. In 1999 Adventureland announced the addition of Space Shot. Space Shot is a 200-foot (61 m) structure that towered over Adventureland launching riders at 4.5 G and ending up with a negative free fall of 1 G. In 2002, Adventureland under undeskmed an $8 million project that was nearly double the size of a hotel, adding a second courtyard, a new swimming pool with interactive water features and new poolside rooms and suites. It also added a new water ride at the park, a rotating white water adventure, called Saw Mill Splash. The ride is themed with an old sawmill and matches the western motif of the Outlaw Gulch area in Adventureland. In 2006, Adventureland added two more rides, The Splash Over and Frog Hopper. In 2008, Adventureland began the most extensive addition - a new water area called Adventure Bay. The area's first water attraction is Kokomo Kove. [1] On February 20, 2010 (around 4 p.m..m.), a fire broke out at the main street clothing store after its roof collapsed due to heavy ice and snow. [2] The collapse caused an electrical fire. The fire broke out and engulfed a corner of Main Street and destroyed a section that included a bingo hall, restaurant, toy store and arcade. The fire was brought under control about an hour later and completely extinguished an hour later. No adjacent structures or rides were harmed and no one was injured. The buildings were destroyed so quickly because, due to their age, sprinklers were not required to be installed. The park opened as planned on April 24, 2010, with the east side of Main Street completely cleared to the ground surrounded by chain-link fences. A banner on the fence states that The Plan is well underway to rebuild Main Street better than ever. All Main Street was rebuilt when the park opened in April 2011, and features a larger arcade with indoor trips. The park's Scrambler ride, formerly known as the Wrangler, was taken out of storage and moved to the G-Force site after the G-Force was moved to the Main Street arcade. On December 15, 2011 (around 3:45 a.m.), another fire broke out, this time destroying the Corn Dog Rally Round stand. Crews said the fire had engulfed the structure when they arrived but they were able to extinguish it quickly. Did Firefighters, electrical transformers behind the corn dog stands were the cause. [3] A food locations will be built in place. On September 6, 2013, Adventureland posted on their official Facebook page that a new attraction called Storm Chaser would be added. A 3D rendering of the ride was posted on the page, as well as an interview with park officials, indicating that the new ride is a Mondial WindSeeker model. Park officials also stated that they would replace the aging Silly Silo because it often went down that travel time and the company no longer made parts to fix it. [4] On July 8, 2015, Adventureland announced that it was adding a new roller coaster called The Monster, a Gerstlauer Infinity coaster and the first of its kind in the United States. It opened to the public on June 4, 2016 after a preview of park employees a few days earlier. This replaces the Log River Rapids ride, which has been running since the park first opened. [5] The monster has a unique night-time LED light display consisting of 137 fixtures mounted on tracks synchronized with the vehicle in question, and 46 ground lights. [6] On September 20, 2017, Adventureland announced a new children's area called Bernie's Barnyard. Opened July 20, 2018 includes two family rides, a playground and kiddie arcade games. This replaces the State Picnic area just behind Storm Chaser. Sometime in mid-April 2018, the crew dismantled inverters, which have been sitting in the place where Super Screamer used to be since 2000. It broke down at the start of the 2017 season and closed the rest of the year, and it was later determined that the trip would be downgraded and put up for sale. It currently sits intersecting in a maintenance shed in front of the park. For Oktoberfest 2018, inverter old room is used for blowing for adults. On December 11, 2018, Adventureland announced on its Facebook page that it would be adding Phoenix, a $6 million spinning coaster from Maurer Rides. Opened on July 4, 2019, replacing Inverter. This is the park's sixth roller coaster and the second largest investment in travel in Adventureland history behind Monster. On May 17, 2020 Adventureland teased a picture of a knight killing a dragon (referring to O.D. Hopkins' 1990 double looping rollercoaster, Dragon). On the same day, the crew is seen unpacking the Dragon and a new teaser is posted under the title The Dragon Slayer. The coaster will open in June 2021. Adventureland's location is located outside exit 142A of I-80, along U.S. Highway 65, in Altoona, just east of Des Moines, Iowa. [1] The Park's themed areas and attractions contain many Disneyland-inspired design nods: The entrance has a train station with two tunnels (on the left and right sides) that lead to the Main Street area, such as at Disneyland or Walt Disney World's Magic Kingdom (and is similar to many other parks built since Disneyland opened in 2013. 1955); in Outlaw Gulch, there are several headstones that have almost the same words as the tombstone outside Walt Disney World's Haunted Haunted attractiveness; Rocking pirate ship (Galleon) has played a soundtrack that includes splashes of water and excerpts from pirates of the Caribbean theme song Yo Ho. Adventureland is Disneyland's own theme area. Adventureland's different themed areas are: Adventure Bay (opened June 22, 2008) is the location behind Outlaw Gulch which is home to the Kokomo Kove water play area. Alpine Village/Bavaria is a German-themed area. The Sky Ride is the park's main attraction, along with the Rathskeller concession stand and Alpine Arcade. In 2015, the newly opened Bier Garten featured a TV set and German beer. In the early years, an accordion player was found in this area of the park to add a German feel. Bernie's Barnyard is a children's area replacing the Country Picnic Ground Area that has been around since 1988 and was removed in 2017, the area opened on July 20, 2018, The Area has a playground structure, toddler play area, Kiddie Arcade Games, gift shop, seating and shade area, statue of park mascot Bernie Bernard, food stand and two children's rides: Crazy Sofa from Skyline Attractions called Shakin Bacon and PonyTrekking from Metallbau Emmeln called Junior Jockeys. Boulevard has several main rides; the largest is the Giant Sky Wheel, the largest open-gondola ferris wheel built in the United States since G.W. Ferris built its wheels in 1893 for the Chicago Exposition. The County Fair is a rural themed area whose main attraction is tornadoes, large wooden roller coasters, as well as many fair-themed skill games. Dragon Island, near the back of the park, was originally known as Riverview. Built in 1979, the area contains a number of attractions from the recently closed Riverview Park entertainment center in nearby Des Moines. In 1990, the area was renamed Dragon Island when the Dragon roller coaster opened. Iowa Farm follows a similar theme. The big pig in the Iowa Ranch section of the park is actually a small concession stand. Last Frontier is a western-themed section. This section of park is home to the Golden Nugget shooting gallery and Sheriff Sam's Saloon (named after former Altoona Mayor and Polk County Sheriff Sam Wise). Main Street, which resembles a stereotypical 20th-century town square, was the first area visitors encountered upon entering the park. The area's main attractions are the A-Train (a small-scale locomotive winding around one side of the park) and an antique-style carousel in the middle of Town Square. Main Street also contains several gift shops, restaurants, arcades, and service types such as new photography. Also on Main Street, there is the Palace Theater, which was formerly home to major live performances, but today it is used for corporate events. Outlaw Gulch, built in 1993, has an Old West theme, complete with ghost town. A tourist attraction in this part of the park is The Outlaw (roller coaster CCI kecil), Chuck Chuck (a small western-themed ferris wheel), Sidewinder (a swing pendulum whose gondola swings riders more than 180 degrees as it spins) and Saw Mill Splash, ride the water. The Royal Hanneford Circus was also present. During the 1993 season, there was a western-themed band playing banjos and bottles on a mock stage that was still left behind the kettle corn sits. Also in the first few years of operation, a cowboy-themed comedy show was held in front of the ghost town's facade, but was later removed and a shooting gallery was installed there. The location of the food also changes from the drinks and snack bar to the front counter serving hamburgers and other fast food. Other food vendors in this section include kettle corn stands, old-fashioned sodas and Dippin' Dots. River City is built around the Raging River rides and is inspired by the towns of the Mississippi River. There's usually jazz or zydeco in the background. The founder of Adventureland is a New Orleans-style jazz fan. River City may have been influenced by river city fiction in Meredith Willson's musical The Music Man. Several food stands are also located in this part of the park. Space Shot Midway is built around the Space Shot spacecraft. Another attraction is The Underground, a ride that combines elements of dark rides and roller coasters. Frantic Freeway bumper cars and many children's rides are also nearby. The games department's games area consists of three play areas:[9] Alpine Games - Alpine is located near the front of the park close to the Giant Sky Wheel. County Fair – opened in 1980, According to park operators, this is adventureland's most popular gaming area. County Fair is a rather large gaming area and has many popular games, including Speedball, Derby Downs, Center Ring, and Skee Ball. The County Fair is unique in that the area is very long, while the other two areas are more circular. The northern part of the area, sometimes called the Iowa Agricultural Section, is where the entrance to the Tornado is located. The Iowa Farm Section features Speedball, the most popular game in the County Fair. Dragon Island – Renamed Dragon Island in 1990, the area was originally called Riverview Island which was built in 1980, although not as big as Fair or Alpine Counties, Dragon Island ranked 2nd in popularity. Dragon Island has a much different atmosphere than the County Fair or Alpine. While The County Fair and Alpine have a more pleasant atmosphere, playing upbeat and popular music that will be recognizable to some guest, Dragon Island has a softer atmosphere, playing slow music without vocals. Food The park has a counter service dining location, including Doc (new for 2018) and Leone's Diner and Bar on Main Street, Chickin Shack, Rally Round, Petunia Pig, Taco Taco Sub sandwich Land, River City Pizzeria, Rathskeller, Spectator's and Outlaw Gulch Foods. While alcohol parks have sold beer (and sometimes wine coolers) in the past, in recent years they have added more adult beverage locations. Bier Garten (opened 2015) – Located in the Bavarian part of the park and directly attached to the Rathskeller. The restaurant serves German beers. Corona Cafe (opened 2015 as Abita Bar) – Located in River City, this hotel serves bottled beers and frozen drinks. ICEE Mix I Up - previously only ICEEs, in 2017 shots of alcohol were added, similar to the offerings at their Oktoberfest. Iowa Beer & Wine Shop (opened 2015) – Located in the Iowa Farm area next to Storm Chaser. The hotel offers a variety of Iowa craft beers and wines, a full bar and frozen drinks. In 2016, a new performance area was added with local music played during the summer. In 2017, a barn-shaped tent was added in front and in 2018 the drinks menu was expanded. Sand Bar (opened 2010) – Full bar located in Adventure Bay. The hotel offers cocktails named after park attractions, as well as frozen drinks. Other food locations serve canned beer and similar drinks. Special event Every year on July 4, Adventureland presents fireworks 15 minutes before the park closes. Adventureland also hosts a variety of events during the off-season when the park is closed. Visitors enter through an open gate at the front entrance and are only allowed at the Main Street Palace Theater connected to Doc and Leone's Diner on Main Street for food and snacks. During the first few weekends of operation, various school bands were invited to play in the park. Every year, a substance-free day is held in concert with the D.A.R.E. During Memorial Day weekend there is a military promotion. There are four garden areas available for corporate picnics, reunions or other large gatherings. [10] On October 3, 2015, Adventureland hosted its first Oktoberfest. The $10 admission ticket (with free parking) includes one beer and access to travel options and limited attractions during this one-day event. Dozens of food and beverage stands were taken to the park (many from outside vendors). The 2nd annual Oktoberfest was held on October 1, 2016 and the third was held on September 30, 2017. Prices and dates for future Oktoberfest events are posted on their website. Mascot and character The park's official mascot is Bernie Bernard, a St. Bernard dog. [1] Cartoon images of Bernie appear on park guides and maps, and walk-around characters pose for photos in the park. In 2017, a new version of Bernie appeared in the park, with a much more rounded look. In 2018, Bernie received his own garden area: Bernie's Barnyard. Another character, Toby the tiger, also walks around the park. According to Adventureland's public relations department, The tiger has been around for a while Bernie, but it's not in our ads, so he's probably unrecognizable. There are two additional dog characters: Heather, also seen in garden; and Henry, who once appeared and was even sold as a stuffed animal. For a special promotion in 2001, Garfield the cat appeared in the park with a special photo opportunity on Main Street. An actor who plays an old miner in the west appears for years in TV commercials and his voice is heard in The Underground's narrative (and as the animatronic voice of an old miner in pre-show). Cartoon caricatures of him appear as a sign of having to be this high to ride outside The Outlaw. In the Palace Theater ticket window, an animatronic character named P.T. Barnaby triggers a garden event every year. He is currently voiced by Billy Martin, the ringmaster of the Royal Hanneford circus. There are many other costumed characters who have appeared in the park over the years. Show Current showed Ben Ulin's magic show, added in 1988, in Sheriff Sam's Saloon. 2017 is the 30th year. Brad Weston's Juggler comedy at the Coca-Cola Cafe (formerly Soda and Sounds). The stage includes a hamburger restaurant with tables to sit and eat around the stage that rises from the ground. The Iowa Beer and Wine Shop stage, added in 2016, features live local music. In 2017, a warehouse-shaped tent was added. Adventureland Circus, added in 2017 replacing the Royal Hanneford Circus, a Circus with newly colored tents, new acts, performances, and more. American Puppet Theater, added in 2017, performed and was created by Libby Weston appearing on the Chapel stage. The former Dolphin Sea Lion Show 1 (1977–1979) Dolphin Sea Lion Show is located in the area where the G-Force used to be, the dolphin sea lion show only opened in 1988 where The Underground is now. The Dolphin Sea Lion Show was replaced by the High Diving Act. Aquatheatre Dolphin Sea Lion Show 2 (1988–1995) Replaced by The Underground. The pool remains but the water is removed. Daniel and Dixieland Diggers (closed in 1999). Animatronic musical performances in the center of Main Street, replaced by South Korea. Game Show: Double Dare (to emulate Nickelodeon's Double Dare). Contestants are selected from the audience to participate in action and games such as Beat The Clock. Underground is now in this space Goat Island (1974–1979) A small lake-themed area located where the river is raging and where Dragon Island now stands. High Diving Act, (1980–1987) The event is located where G forces the old location. Palace Theater (1996), a live performance previously held at the Palace Theater. The Royal Hanneford Circus (1997–2016) was replaced by Adventureland Circus, the Circus tent originally located behind Outlaw, in 2008 the construction of the water park caused the circus to be relocated just behind the Saw Mill Splash with a new access walkway between the trip and out of Outlaw. Dragon Incident, June 1991 On June 8, 1991, four drivers To the Dragon when the elevator chain broke. All four were released from hospital after treatment of their injuries and the ride was repaired. [11] [11] July 2006 An 11-year-old girl suffers head trauma when a piece of wood is left by maintenance staff at Tornado. [12] Mackenzie Hooper and two others were struck by the board when it became dislodged during a travel operation. One of the other two guests was treated in the park and the other sought treatment off-site. The injured girl suffered head injuries and was transported to a local hospital. Witnesses at the scene reported that both local law enforcement, fire rescue services and ambulances were called to the scene. Hooper was reportedly transported to Mercy Medical Center by park staff where he underwent surgery to remove blood clots, reduce swelling and stitch wounds on both sides of his head. Splash Over, May 2008 During the day, Splash Over has about 16 riders on the way, when it does not work and holds the rider stuck upside down for a long period of time. No major injuries occurred. Raging River, June 7, 2016, 68-year-old seasonal employee Steve Booher was helping with the Raging River ride when he crashed into a conveyor belt that moved a raft through a loading and unloading station. [13] Mr. Booher was injured, fell into a coma and died three days later at Mercy Medical Center in Des Moines. The operator prematurely arranges the raft to move while both assistants stand partly on the raft and partly on the travel platform assisting guests as determined by the operator's manual. OSHA conducted an investigation and found no evidence that the park had violated safety protocols, and that the ride operated as designed. Therefore, the park was fined $4500.00[14] and suggestions were made to install safety cutting devices for assistants to ensure the vehicles were left inoperable without the intervention of the three travel operations staff. The rides are allowed to continue operating as built for the rest of the park's operating season. Underground, July 2019 A child injures his leg on the way to leave the station while nesting between a car ride and a loading platform. Emergency services were called and the boy was treated at a local hospital. [15] Reference ^ a b c d e Adventureland – About. Adventurelandpark.com. Retrieved February 14, 2015.
